

John Stuart Mills Platonic Heritage: Happiness through Character

In the early draft of his Autobiography (London, 1873), John Stuart Mill described himself as a pupil of Plato, and cast in the mould of his dialectics. However, how Platos influence came about, to what extent, and with regard to which aspects of Mills thought, form questions that do not usually preoccupy Mill scholarship. To fill this gap in critical attention, this book draws upon a variety of primary sources to pay particular attention to Mills concern with reform, method, character, virtue, and happiness through his reading of the ancient Greeks particularly Plato. At the same time, this book focuses on the intellectual relationship between father and son, studying their responses to the prevalent trends as to the worth of classical studies and of Platonic philosophy in nineteenth-century Britain. Not only does John Stuart Mills intoxication with ancient Greece manifest itself in all those aspects of his works already mentioned; but what is most important it also permeates his unvarying aim: the improvement of mankind through the improvement of its individual members.
